About the Journal

Fuwukari Journal of Social Sciences (FUWJSS) is the journal of the Faculty of Social Sciences, Federal University Wukari. FUWJSS is a blind peer-review, bi-annual journal (published in March and September of each year). FUWJSS is committed to publishing articles that make significant contributions to the theoretical and empirical diversity of all subject areas of the social sciences. All manuscripts sent to the journal are reviewed by qualified external reviewers and members of the editorial board. Decisions on manuscripts are made as promptly as possible, and the journal returns reviewers' comments to authors within the shortest possible time. FUWJSS offsets all the costs associated with high quality publishing of its journal through article processing charges (APCs). Thus, manuscripts sent for review and articles accepted for publication usually incur reviewing and publication fees.

FUWJSS represents the intellectual commitment of the Faculty of Social Sciences, Federal University Wukari in promoting research and knowledge production as indispensable tools of transformation and nation building. Overarching aims and objectives of the journal include:

- a) Promoting the publication and dissemination of research outputs of scholars within and outside the Faculty of Social Sciences, Federal University Wukari;
- b) Promoting and defending the principle of independent thought and the academic freedom of social science researchers within and outside the Faculty of Social Sciences, Federal University Wukari;
- c) Encouraging cooperation and collaboration in knowledge dissemination with other Faculties of Social Sciences and publishing organizations.
